ALASKA-TO-RACINE LOVE AFFAIR SEEN IN MYSTERY DEATH

LONG DISTANCE ROMANCE MAY BE BACK OF MURDER.

STRANGER FLITS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Racine.—Out of mystery surrounding the death of Matt J. Jones, who was taken from a train at Racine last Saturday with his throat cut, comes the theory that a love affair, extending to Alaska, may lie at the bottom of the supposed murder. The theory took definite shape when it was learned that a silent man, just returned from Alaska where he had spent 15 years in the quest of gold, had disappeared from his hotel here just before Janus was taken, with his throat cut, from a train at Corlies.

Stranger Is Rich. The mystery man, it is said, had spent several weeks at the hotel and his acquaintances had gathered from disconnected scraps of information that he had been in Alaska, that he was waiting here for a pal who was to join him.

The stranger gave a name, which police assert was fictitious. He had come here from a town near Fairbanks, Alaska, attempting to obtain further information about the stranger, who told friends here that he had mined for gold for many years at Nanaimo, a few miles from Fairbanks.

This Family Has Hard Struggle to Make Ends Meet

The Gazette heard of a little family out in the country that is receiving help under the aid to dependent children law, but nevertheless have a hard struggle to make ends meet, so a letter was written to the mother asking what the children wanted most; and by return mail came the reply stating that one girl would like a box of stationery, one some dominoes, and the two younger children drawing stoves. Simple desires, indeed, but some body must help Santa Claus grant them.

HARD COAL FAMINE IS GROWING WORSE

State Has Received Less Than a Third of a Normal Supply.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Madison.—Winter flocks Wisconsin with but 29 per cent of the hard coal assured by the federal fuel distributor available, and dependent upon the railroads for delivery of the coal. The secretary of the state coal committee, declared today, sixty per cent of the usual Wisconsin receipts of anthracite, were promised during the summer. Throughout the state are calling for hard coal that isn't to be had unless drastic steps are taken by the federal coal distributor and surrounding states. Dr. Pressentin said. He is asking that the Interstate Commerce commission issue priority orders for shipment of anthracite to the Northwest states.

A Third of Supply. Up to the present time but 440,000 tons of hard coal have been received, while 1,500,000 tons were delivered at the docks during the 1921 season. Wisconsin, according to the coal committee, is short of coal to meet a demand in excess of 600,000 tons, according to the state committee. The close of lake shipping has cut off any hope of fueling the state.

Following is the amount of the allotment promised the larger Wisconsin cities by the federal officials which had been delivered up to the first of December: Milwaukee promised 5,800 tons, received 4,401; Kenosha promised 6,711 tons, received 2,173; Racine promised 22,802 tons, received 7,417; Madison promised 24,000 tons, received 4,563; La Crosse promised 7,688 tons, received 4,261; Wausau promised 1,547 tons, received 322; Rhineland promised 14,000 tons, received 30; Wisconsin Rapids promised 827 tons, received 20; and Oshkosh promised 13,300 tons, received 2,213.

Coal Entirely Gone. Many communities are reporting to the fuel committee that their supplies of hard coal are practically depleted and that they will soon be in need of additional supplies. Minnesota, South Dakota and North Dakota are joining in a request to federal authorities that steps be at once taken to assure the shipment of 55,000 tons of hard coal to the Northwest as the minimum needed to meet the demands. Governor Dillingham has joined in the move to get action on this request, which so far has received no response.

SHORTHORN BREEDERS PLANNING 1923 SHOW

Milking Shorthorn breeders will make plans this winter for forming show herds under the Rock county banner for the 1923 county and state fairs and the Chicago International.

Breeders are now selecting their animals with the view of having them "freshen" about show time and this spring will start selecting them.

All Shorthorn breeders report excellent satisfaction with the showing of the Rock county stock this year. Experiences has given the Shorthorn men many valuable points in selecting and fitting their animals. The county won many premiums on Shorthorns this year both at the state fair and the Rock county show.

The entire show put on by Rock county at the International cost less than $100, for the breeders assumed the cost of the expense by pooling most of their premium money and all paying their own personal expenses and food bills.

If I Could Trim Windows—
SMALL merchants cannot afford to employ a good window trimmer regularly. Usually the merchant or one of his clerks arranges the window displays as best he can. How well he succeeds or how dismally he fails in showing the stock to advantage can be judged by the amount of business done.

If I knew how to trim windows, I'd offer my services to the butcher, the baker, the druggist, and any other merchant who might be interested. A few evenings of spare hours a week thus engaged would assure me a neat income aside from my regular daily work.

To get business I would have to advertise. The best way I know of would be a Gazette Want-Ad in the Classified Columns.

O'DONNELL DEATH CASE IS SETTLED

Agreement in Big Damage Suit Is Reached Out of Court.

An agreement was reached Friday in the death of Arthur M. O'Donnell, a young man who was killed in a traffic accident in Beloit last summer. The conference on the amount of damages was held before Judge George J. Nichols, who has been dismissed by stipulation. The action narrowed down to the amount of damages that could be collected under the provisions of the law. Several legal angles had important bearing to limit the amount that could be collected. The defendant, the Beloit Traction company, liable for the accident, had admitted the amount of damages was in dispute. The only two points, it is declared, could recover damages were the suffering of her son when struck by the car and until he became unconscious and later died, and the support she would have received from him. Physicians declared that after being struck by a few seconds, the suffering during the few seconds was held sufficient to warrant damages. Had O'Donnell been married or had he recovered from the accident, the settlement of the case marks an important landmark in the history of the law. New Furniture Store Planned

Remodeling of the building formerly occupied by the O'Donnell and Dunnington Co. on West Milwaukee street will be completed within the near future and a new furniture store opened thereon or about Feb. 1. G. W. Farnum, one of the owners, announced Friday. The store will be operated by G. W. Farnum and M. J. Farnum, brothers of C. E. Farnum of this city. Until recently they have been living at Madison. G. W. Farnum has been working in the Frank D. Kimball store since its sale to Grebe & Newman. A complete line of furniture will be installed.

Fireless Yuletide Is Chief's Hope

Fire Chief C. J. Murphy calls upon citizens to be unusually careful in the use of candles in Christmas decorations during the coming three days. Especially should they be kept away from curtains, he says, as that is the way most of the Yuletide fires start, many of them proving disastrous. In regard to the practice in many homes of placing candles in the windows on Christmas Eve, Chief Murphy said there is risk and while he does not condemn the idea, he urges that they be carefully watched and curtains kept out of the way.

Youth, Who Jumped Board Bill, Caught

Arrested in Milwaukee upon information sent out by the local police department, Ray Smith, a young man, was arrested Friday on a charge of beating his board bill of $55. The complaining witness was Rose Fisher. He pleaded guilty to the offense and was sentenced to the county jail for 30 days. He was brought back here from Milwaukee by William Smith, night driver of the Janesville street car. From information secured by Ford from Milwaukee detectives, it appears that Smith's roommate while in Janesville—Harry Benjamin—is facing a sentence in Black River Falls on a felony charge. A warrant is also out for Benjamin for jumping his board bill here.

The Christmas program of the seventh and eighth grades of the training school was given Friday afternoon under the direction of the Misses Maude Culvert and Lucy Baker. The program consisted of Christmas readings by Mildred Baker and Sadie Eberhart; the story of Christmas told by Edwin Ranker; recitation by Donovan Tait; Christmas toy doll dance by five girls; solo by Dorothy Pliska; and a duet by Mildred Yoder and Marie Rosenberg.

The fifth and sixth grade program was under the direction of the Misses Rose Becker and Lucy Baker. Two Christmas stories were told by Hazel Kitzman and May Knicker. Frances Reuter, Arthur Mungway and Jack Graham, in kingly costume, sang "We Three Kings of Orient Are."

DRY OFFICIALS TO STOP BOOTLEGGING

Upshaw Started Something When He Asked That Drinking be Prohibited.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Copyright, 1922, by Janesville Daily Gazette.

Washington — Representative Upshaw's speech calling upon all officials of the United States government as well as the governors of the several states of the union to take the dry oath themselves has tended to bring out into the open one of the most perplexing phases of the entire prohibition question.

For it is an open secret that although prohibition is the law of the land and the national capital is the center of law enforcement and respect for the statutes, the use of liquors in private parties attended by officials high and low is not frowned upon. There is a clash between public duty and private sentiment.

Mr. Upshaw of Georgia is the first to challenge that attitude of officials which seeks to impose the prohibition law in the abstract sense while countenancing the use of liquor privately. No intoxicants are served on the tables of high officials in any public functions, but as the Washington Post, an administration paper, said not long ago "A census shows there are 500 bootleggers in the District of Columbia and now if we could only have a census of their private consumers," the fact of considerable drinking of intoxicants is not denied.

Not Prohibit Drinking

But the law doesn't prohibit drinking. Officials who use liquors can very well say there is no restriction in the constitution against the use of liquors, or even their purchase, but simply their manufacture and sale. The question raised by Mr. Upshaw is that officials should, however, set an example and refuse to buy any liquors. So far as stopping the bootlegger trade, the cutting off of the national capital's supply of illicitly sold liquors would be a matter in the matter of the bootlegging trade of the country.

The theory of Mr. Upshaw and the other drys who do not like to see the government officials drinking at all is that they will be better able to enforce the law if they privately believe in it. There are "wets" who think just the opposite, namely that if government officials found themselves absolutely cut off from liquor supply they would better understand the public sentiment of these localities where the liquor laws are openly flouted by state officials as well as the most prominent citizens of the country.

Trenches and Practices

William Jennings Bryan is one of the few who have been in official life not only to champion the dry cause publicly but to practice what he preached. He used to keep a book on hand so that any of his friends could sign the dry pledge, whenever the impulse moved them. It has frequently been charged that many so-called drys in the house and senate who voted for the Volstead act as well as the eighteenth amendment have kept a private supply of liquor in their homes or in their offices. One local newspaper not long ago won a good deal of ill will on Capitol Hill by publishing photographs of empty liquor bottles carried away from congressional buildings by the garbage men from time to time. There are, of course, hundreds of employees in the capital other than those who have a vote, and there is no certainty that any or all the bottles came from the legislators themselves.

But the presumption of Mr. Upshaw that officials are not doing all they might themselves to discourage bootlegging in the District of Columbia, even though the enforcement officers are zealously trying to root them out, will ever be the subject of controversy as between wets and drys here. As usual with prohibition questions, there is little proof, it is all surmise. But he would be an untruthful reporter who didn't agree that there is much in what Mr. Upshaw says about the attitude of many officials toward enforcement of the prohibition laws.

Take Oath Himself

Will every man who tries to impose prohibition or appeals for its enforcement take the oath himself and for his family? The representative from Georgia has issued a challenge that many folks hereabouts would have been just as happy to have had him omit.

"The plain people," he says, "believe that many of these high officials believe in that autonomy which claims the privilege of buying and drinking illicit liquors themselves while denying that privilege to the poor devils among the masses."

It's difficult to venture a prediction as to what the answer of officialdom will be to the charge. The "drys" meaning high officials have known about this for many months. They have deemed it politic to make no charges and stir up no animosities, but it was inevitable that sooner or later there would be a clash between public enforcement and private practice in the national capital.

Prattle vs. Truth

For some time past you have had opportunities to read many hectic advertisements published by one of our competitors, in which an attempt was made to establish the fact that all gasolines except one were "untrue." That these alleged "untrue" gasolines were "kerosenish" mixtures—that to use such a gasoline meant disaster—all of which was a smoke-screen intended to stem the inevitable—until the time when would be made known, and this is the time. The manufacture of gasoline has been developed from a hit or miss process—which gave only what the crude had to give—to a scientifically developed practice which takes from the crude whatever naphtha products the consumer requires.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) in its manufacturing practices has kept pace with the advancement of knowledge. It has grasped every new development that has been proved worthy by exhaustive test and has incorporated it into its refining practices, and has given the resulting benefits to the public.

Of all the refinements which have come out of the scientific laboratories during the past 30 years, the most significant, the most far-reaching and the most useful has been the world-famous Burton Process, now acknowledged to be the most successful process yet devised for transforming the heavier fractions of petroleum into those highly volatile compounds which are needful in the manufacture of good gasoline.

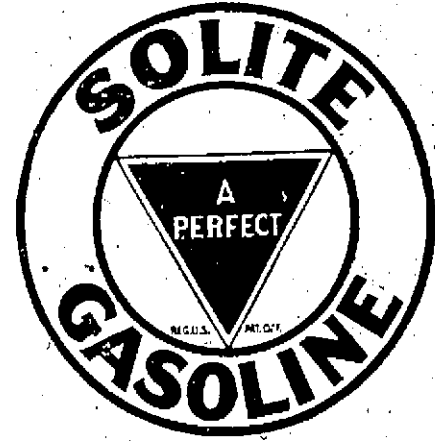

When the process was first devised, it was referred to as a "cracking" process because it resulted in the breaking up of heavier compounds and converting them into other more volatile compounds.

The Burton Process has been, in successful operation in the refineries of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) for the past nine years, during which time this Company has manufactured and sold upwards of two billion gallons of cracked gasoline. That the gasoline made by this process is as efficient as that made by ordinary distillation of crude is attested by no less an authority than the Bureau of Mines, which stated in a Department of Interior Bulletin: "There is reason to believe, instead of being inferior, the cracked gasolines are really superior for use in automobile engines as regards both mileage and power obtainable."

The observations and experiments of our own research men confirm these findings.

All motor gasolines manufactured by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) are made at least in part by the Burton Process. This is one reason why our famous Red Crown Gasoline has won so favorable a reputation for uniformity, purity, economy and efficiency, for, because of this process, we have been able to control the quality of the necessary boiling point fractions and to have always ready the stocks from which to manufacture a gasoline of standard specification. Red Crown has long been the peer of gasolines. Now comes its companion, also a product of scientific refining—
